About The Cover

Cole Thomas Homes built this new model home located in Las Cruces. The goal for this project was to show how a home could capture its place in an existing natural environment, make a design statement itself, and still manage to blur the line between the indoor and outdoor spaces. There were three exterior glass pocket doors in the home and each unit was 9 ft tall and 10 ft wide. Two of the units have remote controlled automation and were the first of their kind in the Las Cruces market. Cole Thomas Homes credits Jason Clark at StudioD Architects and Connie Hines Interior Design for their roles in making this project a reality.
